Palawan river now 'global jewel' of 7Wonders

By Redempto D. Anda

PUERTO PRINCESA CITY—Palawenos yesterday greeted with fireworks the news that the Puerto Princesa Underground River (PPUR) has been named among the world's new seven wonders of nature in a global poll.

The minute the provisional winners were announced at dawn yesterday, fireworks exploded around the city to signal that the Underground River had successfully made it to the vote for the final seven.

Hundreds of students and government employees marched early yesterday morning from the cathedral in downtown Puerto Princesa to the city coliseum to celebrate the event. City officials are planning a major celebratory event in the coming week.

While the list of winners is provisional and could still change by the time a final announcement is made in early 2012, Mayor Edward Hagedorn said he and other Palawan officials are confident that the Philippines' entry will stay in the final seven.

Environment Secretary Ramon Paje, who was the national campaign manager for the government's push for the PPUR,

Aquino bares gas deposits 'so enormous' in disputed Spratlys

By Norman Bordadora

HONOLULU—There are substantial gas deposits—so enormous that they "dwarf" the Malampaya oil fields off Palawan—in disputed territories in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea), President Aquino said at the business leaders conference of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (Apec) forum.

And by next year, the President said, a US firm would start operations in the gas-rich territory. He made the remarks at a session on commodity security at the Apec CEO Summit, in which he was asked what his administration was doing to address the high cost of electricity in the Philippines.

"There is a new field that [will] be brought up at [started], I understand, by next year by an American company in the northern portion of the Philippines," Mr. Aquino said.

"There are substantial gas deposits that we believe are already in the proven stage at this point in time, that will dwarf the Malampaya oil

Pacquiao, Marquez clash for vindication

LAS VEGAS—The pronouncements he keeps hearing in his head. The newspaper clipping he sees on the wall when pounding the speedball. The face he sees when crushing sparring partners in training.

All that becomes flesh today for Manny Pacquiao.

And it will stand before him on a ring at the MGM Grand Garden Arena, all 143 pounds—maybe more—of bulked-up muscles and counterpunching accuracy as Pacquiao hopes to finally exorcise the ghost that has haunted him since 2004.

Pacquiao faces Juan Manuel Marquez, his Mexican nemesis and perhaps the only other boxer to leave him perplexed—and bruised—since 2004.

It is the third match of their compelling rivalry, one already being lined up among the great trilogies of the sport's history and one that could end up the most remembered.

Maiden's dream turns islet into mangrove park

By Jerome Balinton
Inquirer Southern Luzon

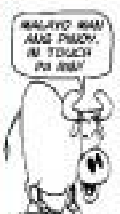

CALATAGAN, Batangas—It started as a young woman's dream of a pristine coastline with lush mangrove trees in her town.

The dream of youth leader Hannah Eugenia has become reality and a source of pride for the residents of Calatagan, who are now fiercely protective of their mangrove forest.

It had never occurred to many of the town's residents that mangroves could not only shield them from natural disasters but also give them additional income.

But through the rehabilitation effort initiated by Eugenia in 2009 and now funded by Conservation International (CI)—Philippines, a mangrove park is thriving in "Ang Pulo," a tiny islet 30 minutes by boat from the mainland. And a mangrove belt along Calatagan's coastal area now serves as the community's natural defense from

Top exec discovers what life is all about

By Tina Arceo-Dumlao

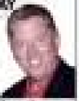

ROSA Miller came to the Philippines during one of the most challenging times in its economic history. The Asian currency crisis had reared its ugly head and local companies that had borrowed heavily in dollars saw their debt burden balloon and their revenues remain close to a trickle.

While 3M Philippines had a healthy balance sheet and did not come anywhere close to seeking temporary relief from paying its creditors, it faced its own share of challenges in getting local companies and individuals to continue buying its wide range of industrial and consumer products despite the economic turmoil.

ONE OF the biggest criticisms about the late great CEO and billionaire Steve Jobs was that he didn't espouse or use his influence and renown to promote philanthropy, quite unlike his contemporary and longtime rival Bill Gates.

Surely, the same thing can't be said of the top management of the Ayala organization. Jaime Zobel de Ayala, chair emeritus of Ayala Corp., even in retirement, is a relentless proponent of giving back to the community. Ayala's marketing projects encourage and inspire charity and volunteerism.

MERALCO'S 5 MILLIONTH CUSTOMER FEELS ENERGIZED TO FACE THE FUTURE

When medical technologist Million Guittap applied for electric service, he was hesitant because of the responsibility of having his own account. Little did he know that he would become Meralco's five millionth customer and join a growing number of Filipinos whose lives are being energized.

Having married last September, the 29-year-old Million is embarking on a new stage in life with wife Dorcas and feeling a mixture of excitement and anxiety as they face the future together. Both know they have to make it on their own so they can build their family.

"Kailangan na naming magsarili kaya sinuwat ko ang bilin ng Daddy na mag-apply ng panibagong linya sa Meralco," he recalls. "Tama ang desisyon ko kasi alam ko na mahalaga ito sa aming mag-asawa lalo sa pagtayo ng aming pamilya."

Since childhood, Million has been living with his family on #4 Concepcion St. in Barangay Plainview in Mandaluyong City. It is on the second floor of the same house where his father wants him to start his family so he decided to have his own Meralco account.

Million met Dorcas at the Mandaluyong City Medical Center where she also works as a medical technologist. The hardworking couple that they are, the Guittaps want to become successful entrepreneurs as well. Million dreams of opening a computer shop while Dorcas plans to have a food cart in one of the malls when they're able to raise enough capital.

For being Meralco's five millionth customer, Mill and Cas – as they are fondly called by friends – were recognized in simple ceremonies at the utility company's Mandaluyong business center.

As part of its recognition, Meralco gave the couple a starter set of energy-efficient appliances consisting of a one-horsepower (HP) airconditioning unit (with switch-to-fan feature), stand fan, an LCD television set with a DVD player and an induction heating cooker.

For a household with a bill amount of P3,000 as of November 2011, the electric consumption of the aircon unit is about P8.50 an hour, based on computations using the Meralco Appliance Calculator available on the Meralco website. This type of aircon unit is more energy-efficient than other models because of its switch-to-fan feature, a groundbreaking innovation that allows the consumer to manage or control his aircon usage.

Use of the induction heating cooker, on the other hand, is up to 37% less expensive than using an LPG stove for customers with average monthly consumption of 350 kWh and below. This is based on laboratory tests conducted by Meralco comparing monthly average use of the cooker versus gas stove, assuming the cost of LPG at P880 per 11-kilogram tank.

Results of technical research reveal that electric consumption of the LCD (liquid crystal display) television set is only one-third of the cost of using the conventional CRT or cathode ray tube technology.

Beaming with glee, the Guittaps received the appliances from company executives with a word of gratitude and an affirmation that Meralco is true to its promise of helping Filipinos have a brighter future.

"Masayang-masaya kami na kasama namin ang Meralco sa pag-celebrate ng dalawang buwan ng aming pagsasama bilang mag-asawa at sa paghatid sa mas maliwanag na bukas," Million said during the recognition ceremony.

Meralco Senior AVP Ferdinand O. Geluz, who heads Home and Microbusiness in the Central Business Area, is glad that Meralco is part of the Guittap couple's efforts and plans in building their future.

"It is Meralco's desire to help Filipinos, like Million and Dorcas, spend more quality time at home and strengthen family ties by providing them the power to live better lives. This is our company's value-for-money proposition," he noted.

Like the newlywed couple, he said, Meralco is also starting a journey towards becoming the number one utility company in the Philippines, comparable to the best in the world.

Meralco Senior Vice President Alfredo S. Panlilio, head of Customer Retail Services and Corporate Communications, takes pride in the milestone which shows the distribution utility expanding and helping the economy grow in the process.

"We continue to harness the power of technology to bring comfort to Meralco's increasing number of customers, and in so doing we also help bring progress to households and businesses," he said.

Data show that Meralco's customer growth averages 2.5% to 3% a year, a clear indicator of customer trust in the company. Meralco recorded its four millionth customer in 2003.

For Mill and Cas as well as the millions of Meralco consumers who share the company's vision of a brighter tomorrow, the journey has begun.

ON ITS 10th year, Cummins Sales and Service Philippines, Inc. (CSSPI) gratefully looks back on the years that have come to pass as they celebrate a decade of providing quality products and world-class service to the Filipino people.

"We can hardly believe that it has been 10 years already," says Jon Morford, general manager of CSSPI. "Nonetheless, we are extremely grateful to our customers because without them, most definitely we would not be where we are today."

As a leading worldwide designer and manufacturer of diesel engines from 30-3,500 horsepower, and producer of commercial diesel engines above 50 horsepower, Cummins has diversified into other value-add products which constantly aim to make people's lives better through their products and services.

Cummins, Inc., the mother company of CSSPI, is a global power leader based in Columbus, Indiana, USA. This corporation has complementary business units that design, manufacture, distribute and service electrical power generation systems, engines and related technologies including fuel systems, controls, air handling, filtration and emission solutions.

THE CSSPI team toasts to its 10th year

For a decade now, CSSPI has provided quality service for engines and generator systems in virtually all industrial and marine applications. Leading companies across all segments and markets turn to them, to provide and satisfy their energy solution requirements. Buildings have come to life, thanks to the leading edge and reliable generation services of CSSPI.

CSSPI offers a variety of products, from generator sets to filtration and lubricants and power rentals. They continue to rethink and reinvent, mindful of the needs of their customers and not anything less. And through all this they sustain a key goal: excellence.

CSSPI celebrated its 10th year in Makati Shangri-La hotel with Cummins top executives, partners and government officials present at the event.

THE Cebu City Marriott Hotel hosted An Evening for a Cause, as in Pink October, that was quite a gathering of notables and the glamour crowd. Guests milled at the lobby lounge or ventured to the alfresco patio by the pool.

Welcoming all was general manager Bruce Winton with his party wife Christine, and the hotel's top team led by PR manager Charlene Go and marketing's Dominic Dorol.

Among the early birds were news pals Chingggay Utzurrum and Cookie Newman, who were led to a cushion-strewn nanny where they held court for the rest of the evening. "We're pretty in pink," Ching said. Brian, by indeed, the invitations had suggested "chic pink" as the evening's dress code.

Carlotta Sala was chatting with Mohammed El Kasem, who resides at the Marriott. He is the new Cebu manager for Qatar Airways. He said he was watching the crowd for Dr. Hipocrates Ethimius. They went to the same school in Alexandria, Egypt.

Bessie Abella came into view with Fran Hermosa, followed by Susana Oliver, Agnes Espiritu and Yvette Tean, who will be Pink Ribbon on the forthcoming show "Fashion and Rhythm." Mila Espina is directing it as a fundraiser for the Consular Corps of Cebu and the Rotary Club of Cebu.

The show is set for Nov. 17 at 7 p.m.

Pink Committee members Lani Ozamiz and Mary Anne Solomon were radiant with the success of the Marriott event. Designer Arcy Gayatin, who is her own best model, was in the crowd. So were Sandra Ponte, Lilith Fiorella, Rowena Sanz and Claudine Ugarte escorted by husband Mikel Ugarte.

Inner another fashion plate, Susie Buenaventura Milan in a deep shade of pink. Opting for bubblegum pink and hovering to from another party was Her Excellency who joined Chinggay and Cookie in their well attended perch.

It didn't take long for the party to peak. You know that Ogden Nash reflection on ice breaking which says that candy is dandy but liquor is quicker. And so the Marriott's resident bartender whipped up pink cocktails for everyone to sip and gulp.

A big success was the Cebu Greyhound—grapefruit and calamansi juice with grenadine syrup and vodka. There was also a version minus the vodka, future spared for "Pinkalicious."

That was made with pineapple and coconut blended with white rhum. One could also have chilled juices of orange, mango or pineapple, plus red or white wine. Someone asked for pink champagne and was told, "next year."

"I'll be brief," said Bruce when asked to say a few words and preside the raffle draw. Most coveted prizes were dinner certificates at the Marriott's Garden Café, and with good reason.

Executive chef Brendan Mahoney has upgraded the hotel's cuisine, and it was evident that evening. The extensive buffet offered the juiciest fish fillets ever, chicken wings in various versions, deviled shrimps, lobster balls and more. An innovation on the Visayan favorite bingcoy was topped with your choice of ice cream scoops plus a plethora of delectable ingredients to delight any sweet tooth.

Cebu International School

Also held at the Marriott, this time at the grand ballroom, was the annual cocktail party hosted by the Cebu International School. "It's a form of thanksgiving," said Evelyn Fischer, the CIS superintendent who has led this venerable institution (dating to 1924) to greater heights in recent years.

For one thing, CIS is one of three schools in the Philippines, and the only one in the Visayas, to have obtained international accreditation through the Council of International Schools.

During this celebration the program was hosted by student council vice president Patricia Borcella, daughter of Manolo and Lilith Fiorella, who is in Grade 12, and Matt Walker who is in Grade 11, and a most articulate representative to the student council.

Beautiful music was rendered by the CIS Chamber Ensemble, conducted by Joel Cruz. They played the classics as well as pop tunes masterfully arranged.

Everyone was attentive to the four students who spoke about their experiences: Jade Hollenbergen (Grade 10) on the Beijing Model United Nations; Monica Villanueva (Grade 6) on Philippines Week; outside Isabel Regner (Grade 11) on the International Baccalaureate program; and Phil Chan (Grade 10) on the Australian Cultural and Academic Exchange.

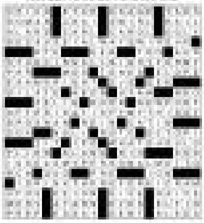

That was a trip he made to Italy with other CIS students to Adelaide.

It was a most enriching journey for them as well as for their chaperone faculty member, Ms. Rowena Rosario Lapitana.

From Bimby to Piolo

PIOLO takes it off once more with sizzling hot Overloaded jeans—a Bench trademark people will never get enough of.

BENCH IS starting them early with a Teenwear line of made-for-kids clothes endorsed by show-biz royal "Baby James" Yap.

Son of host and actress Kris Aquino and cager James Yap, "Bimby" comes into his own with his own campaign for Bench Teenwear.

Designed for kids age 2 to 14, the Bench Teenwear line is perfect for that precocious stage when kids are still running around, but are influenced enough by the styles of their favorite musicians and pop stars on TV.

Take for example the hip-hop-inspired hoodie, matched with a plaid button-down and comfy jeans. Plaid also comes in pants, as on a hip drumbeat polo, thrown like a jacket over a pique logo shirt. For church or more formal occasions, there's a sleeve-checked dress shirt in black and white—a

SM LAUNCHES RAJO! FOR PARISIAN

Parisian, SM's iconic shoe brand that has made generations of Filipina women really in style recently launched its exclusive Rajo! for Parisian capsule collection at the SMDC Showroom at the Mall of Asia complex.

Inspired by designer Rajo Laurel's love for architecture, polygons, and total culture, the SMDC showroom's dazzling interiors provided the perfect backdrop for the launch. This was transformed into a museum-like area with creative sculptural shapes, very much like art installations to reflect the new shoe collection's architecture inspired shapes.

Club music enveloped the showroom with the fabulous Zoobettes – Sonya Smith, Chrissie Cadenas and Mo Ayson – spinning the best party beats. The show opened with a short video of the designer talking about his collection.

Then models in sheer bodysuits walked down SMDC's grand staircase in sheer body suits to present the star of the show – the Rajo! for Parisian shoe collection. They posed there amidst the sculptural shapes for everyone to admire. Then Rajo unveiled the complete collection in the most amazing modern installation.

The rest of the evening found guests lining up to buy the shoes from the collection.

Rajo! for Parisian is an exciting creative partnership between SM's Parisian line and Rajo Laurel. For Parisian's Eugene Bay, "teaming up with Rajo is a wonderful experience as he shared with us his expertise and work ethic. [illegible] that are responsible for the success of his brand."

Rajo, on the other hand, says that the collection "is my homage to SM which started 50 years ago as a shoe store. I wanted to respect that tradition and honor it. With this first collaboration with SM, I was very excited."

It also showcases the designer's love for shoes, which he considers "the cornerstone of fashion. They special one's outfit you can say they start the whole look. Shoes have a special place in my heart, and I believe every woman deserves the perfect shoe."

Rajo! for Parisian is an SM exclusive capsule collection consisting of just 14 styles with around 200 pairs per color for each style, making it one of the nation's latest shoe must-haves. While the collection is creatively designed and beautifully crafted, it has a price range of P 999.75 to P 2,199.75, remaining true to what Parisian stands for – high fashion made affordable.

The Rajo! for Parisian is available at select Parisian SM Department Stores: SM Makati, SM Cubao, SM North EDSA, SM Megamall, SM Southmall, SM Mall of Asia, and SM Cebu.

BUILD ON YOUR PASSIONS.

Passions are just like buildings. To see them through to fruition, you have to build them from the ground up, stone by stone. No one knows this better than the man who leads an organization whose passion is to build people's dreams. Meet Mr. Marc Cabrera, current president of Greater Metro Manila Habitat for Humanity and erstwhile builder of successful business start-ups.

After serving short stints in several companies, Marc came early on to the realization that the daily grind was just not for him. Seeing the potential of a new trend back then, he and several friends pooled their resources together and set up their own sound system equipment business. The [illegible] was fun, and business for Marc was even better. But even the hottest trends can grow cold. And so before the music ended, Marc left the sound system business and started his own insurance outfit. He became so good at it that a prominent law firm hired him to be their insurance consultant. And he maintained his successful insurance business even while he worked for a prominent business tycoon on the side, managing his export requirements. This passion for building things would serve him in good stead when he was elected by the Board of Directors as President of Greater Metro Manila Habitat for Humanity, a foundation that builds houses for the urban poor. With his vast experience in building businesses from the ground up, the organization was a perfect fit for a hands-on manager like Marc. Young volunteers are always amazed that at his age he is physically involved in all site inspections, groundbreaking events and construction activities. Not to mention the mental rigors of planning and organizing the activities of a big foundation like Habitat For Humanity.

For active seniors like Marc Cabrera, there's Enervon Prime, a nutritional drink loaded with Mind & Body Boosters. Mind nutrients like Taurine and Folic Acid improve memory and concentration, while Vitamins B6 and B12 enhance mental energy. Body nutrients like Vitamins C, E, and Zinc boost immunity, while Calcium promotes bone health. This combination of mind & body nutrients fuels them physically and mentally so they can continue to build on their passions, and just like Marc Cabrera, see it all becoming a solid reality.

whom were stranded and had been there since the night shift, while the others braved the long walk in waist-deep, dirty salt water from Harrison Plaza or T.M. Kalaw.

"Seeing the waves hit the seawall, come higher than the coconut trees, made me feel like I was watching National Geographic—only I was in the middle of it all. There was no electricity for anyone to speak of. It's as if we were in the middle of the ocean. Growing up at Aristocrat never did I ever experience one tonight such to happen. I was a witness to God's manifestation of His power.

"But what made me feel His presence more was the presence of all those around me, the people who gave me hope and determination that we could make it and put things back in order. By 6:30 p.m., Aristocrat opened its doors once again to serve the hungry. With the strong love and devotion of our Aristocrat family, we worked together as one—as ONE ARISTOCRAT!

"This to me was the essence of what 75 years of Aristocrat is all about—people. Once again, we made history."

Iza's Gosling goal

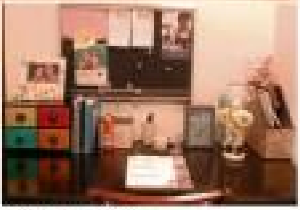

IT TOOK little convincing for actress Iza Calzado to bare and dare on the latest cover of men's mag Esquire. "It was the right time and the right magazine," said Iza. "After all, it's an international franchise." She also made a deal with the mag's editor, who was set to interview Hollywood stars in the United States. "In exchange, I asked the editor to show my photo to Ryan Gosling," Iza told us, laughing.

came from their old apartment, while others were gifts from their parents and relatives. "The old batch (wooden chests) are from our grandparents. The polka-dot chair came from my grandfather," he said. "We just had it reupholstered. The antique lions are from Sandrine's mom."

The koi fish painting in the living room is by Ramon Diaz, while the fruit and flower still life is by Isabel Diaz.

"We didn't want our home to be too modern," Bob explained the design theme. "We didn't want it to look like a hotel. More than anything, we wanted our home to exude a cool, cozy colorful ambience."

They didn't put up too many walls, either, to make the public spaces look more breezy and bright. "Our home reflects our personality," said Sandrine. "There's a mix of old and new—with a lot of pieces inherited from our parents."

There's a strong Asian touch, with lots of browns, beiges and other earth colors. For a Pinoy twist, they laid out an abaca rug in the living room. They got a [illegible] wood dining table, which seats eight, from a store in Makati. A perfect match is the hardwood buffet table.

Displayed in the dining area are various framed menus from their favorite restaurants all over the world. The lone Filipino menu on their list is Antonio's of Tagaytay. "Some of the menus are from San Domenico in Italy, Iggy's in Singapore, Pierre Gagnaire in France, Martin Berasategui in Spain. We had our honeymoon in Modena, Italy." Sandrine also displayed vintage menus from Paris, France, where she studied culinary arts at the Ritz.

They made sure to build a lush and spacious garden with lots of trees and shrubs. "We're both outdoorsy and we want to give our son plenty of space to run around in."

Bob sometimes practices a few drills with his sons in the garden. "We train twice a week. We usually have football games over the weekend."

The successful candidates shall be responsible for performing due diligence, analyzing financial statements, evaluating industry trends, and developing business plans including originating, developing and managing corporate finance deals. The ideal candidates should meet the following qualifications:

- Business Management, Finance, Economics, Accounting, or Industrial Engineering degree, and with an MBA;
- at least 3-5 years similar work experience; and
- proficient in financial analysis, structuring financial packages and advising and dealing with clients at a senior level.

VICE PRESIDENT, ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT, SENIOR MANAGER, MANAGER for Corporate Planning

The successful candidates shall be responsible for analyzing the competitive environment and managing the development and preparation of strategic long range plans for the individual companies of the ICCP Group. The ideal candidates should meet the following qualifications:

- Business Management, Economics, Engineering or similarly relevant degree, preferably with an MBA;
- at least 2-5 years relevant experience in strategic and/or operational planning in a managerial capacity;
- expertise on various components of project study preparation and strategic planning processes.

MANAGER for Market Research

The successful candidate will be responsible for conducting research studies by gathering information about competitor companies and analyzing market conditions that would impact on sales and customer satisfaction. This includes analysis of data and writing of the economics, competitive and social aspects for domestic projects, and reports as well as presenting research findings in coordination with marketing and business development group. The ideal candidates should meet the following qualifications:

- College degree in Business Administration or Economics, preferably with MBA;
- 2 years of research experience preferably in a real estate company.

ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT, SENIOR MANAGER for Business Development

The successful candidates will undertake the identification and/or study of business development opportunities and manage or carry out a variety of special projects/assignments. The ideal candidates should meet the following qualifications:

- Management, Finance, Economics, Accounting or Engineering degree preferably with an MBA or other relevant post graduate course;
- at least 3-5 years relevant experience, with significant exposure in undertaking project feasibility studies and analyzing financial reports;
- good analytical, interpersonal and presentation skills.

MANAGER for Land Acquisition

The successful candidate will conduct geographic scans to determine growth areas suitable for future property developments. Under general direction, he/she shall oversee and manage activities relating to land acquisition such as, but not limited to, overseeing survey plans, coordinating appraisals, conducting initial due diligence, negotiating agreements for purchase of property and other dealings related to land acquisition.

This position requires knowledge in land classification and conversion and substantial public contact and the use of discretion and independent judgment. The candidate should have the ability to maintain a flexible working approach and be able to work well under pressure in a fast-paced environment. The ideal candidate should meet the following qualifications:

- A degree in Business or Engineering relevant to property development such as civil, industrial or geodetic engineering;
- with at least 5 years of solid hands-on experience in land acquisition of which at least 2 years should be in a managerial capacity;
- Unquestionable integrity.
